Title: Curriculum revision & design Consultant

Background

Gardens for Health International (GHI) is a non-profit organization dedicated to eradicating malnutrition and fostering healthy communities through equipping families and communities with vital education, skills, and knowledge on nutrition, health and agriculture to meet their nutritional needs. We empower families to grow and eat nutritious meals to achieve a world where no child suffers from malnutrition.

Gardens for Health International is seeking a qualified consultant to assist in the final touches of the revision of its agriculture, health and nutrition curriculum. The goal is to ensure that the curriculum is aligned with current research and best practices in the field, and is visually appealing and engaging for learners.

Scope of Work

The consultant will be responsible for the following tasks:

Review and Analysis:

- Review the revised agriculture, health and nutrition curriculum materials.
- Identify areas for improvement and alignment with current research, protocols, national policies and best practices.
- Analyze the effectiveness and clarity of the curriculum content.
- Ensure the curriculum is culturally appropriate and sensitive to the needs of diverse learners and users.

Visual Design:

- Design or redesign posters, handouts and other visual aids to enhance the curriculum's friendly-usability and effectiveness.
- Develop appropriate visuals and images relevant to the curriculum content and potential audience.
- Ensure the visual design is consistent with Gardens for Health International's branding.

Editing and Proofreading:

- Proofread and edit the curriculum materials for clarity, relevance and format.
- Ensure the curriculum is free of errors and inconsistencies.

Summarization and Simplification:

- Summarize complex concepts and information in a clear and concise manner.
- Use appropriate language and terminology that is easy to understand.

Consultation and Collaboration:

- Collaborate closely with the Gardens for Health International, health/nutrition and agriculture team throughout the process.
- Provide expert advice and guidance on the curriculum development and design.
- Provide feedback through regular meetings and discussions with the technical team at Gardens for Health International.

Deliverables

The consultant will deliver the following outputs:

- Revised agriculture, health and nutrition curriculum materials, including lesson plans, methodology, handouts, and assessments.
- Redesigned posters and other visual aids and materials.
- Final report summarizing the consultant's findings and recommendations.

Qualifications and Experience

The consultant should have the following qualifications and experience:

- Advanced degree in public health, agriculture, nutrition, education, or a related field.
- Minimum 3+ years of experience in curriculum development and design.
- Strong understanding of food systems at national and regional levels
- Deep comprehension in nutrition sensitive agriculture, health and nutrition concepts and best practices.
- Expertise in educational methodologies and instructional design.
- Excellent writing, editing, and proofreading skills.
- Strong interpersonal and communication skills.
- Experience working in international development or public health settings (preferred).

Timeline

The consultant will work within a 6-week timeframe.
